LAWYERS' CARDS.

How Callers are Fooled. If any of our readers have occasion to visit lawyers' offices when the occupants are not in, they have some idea of the unreliability of the cards used by many of tramps, who have journeyed thither to see them to give callers an idea of where they | the wonderful work. This accounts for are. If you walk into an office early in the deserted condition of the Lancaster the morning, as likely as not the lawyer lockup for some days past. is out and the card on the top of the pile bears the words "Gone to Dinner." You look again to see that there is no mistake and wondering where the man takes meals, you start for another office to find that the lawyer "Will Be Back Soon, Take a Seat." The caller usually takes a seat because there is nothing else in the room worth taking. He sits as quiet as a clam for an hour or more and then begins to think that the attorney lies. To while away the time he picks up a newspaper which he finds to be several weeks old, and, after reading all the "ads," &c., which he would not read if in any other place, he takes his departure. Upon going out of the door he is informed that the lawyer whom he was in search of has gone out of town and will be back in two days. A card which is often at the top of the pile reads, "In the Court was set on fire by the explosion of a coal House." By that card the caller is lead to oil lamp in their bed room as they were in believe that the lawyer is up to his ears | the act of retiring to bed Tuesday night. in business. He wends his way to the court house, and after looking in the court | that both the sufferers will recover. The room, the library room, and all the offices down stairs, he again starts to the office, and meets the lawyer who had been for lunch on the street. The latter then swears that he has been looking all over town for him. If you go into an office and find that the occupant is "At the Barber Shop," the best thing you can do is to go to the court room, where you will find Mr. Attorney spread out on a chair sound asleep, or, if awake, talking polities. Men in search of lawyers never have faith in the barber-shop cards, for they believe that all lawyers shave themselves as well as everybody else. If lawyers want to let the public know where they are some of them will have to get a number of new cards printed, with different ideas on from the old ones. If they take our advice, after procuring a new set of cards, they will keep them arranged and will always tell the truth (by cards) leaving their point of destination on the top of the pile. This will save clients and people who come around to loaf for an hour or more each day a great deal of trouble and worriment. This advice does not apply to candidates for district attorney, who are never in their offices long enough to change their cards. If they would change them a person having business with them would be certain of finding (?) them at the place named on the card. Oh, yes.

The Richard farm, known as "Stowe," west of town, appears to Mr. Gardner to be the best suited to his purpose and it is likely a purchase of this property will be made in a short time. Mr. Gardner is a young man of wealth and pleasing manners. He and his father are among the most extensive tobacco growers of the tobacco county, owning and controlling three large farms. On seven acres, personally, a crop was raised that sold for twenty cents per pound, netting $600 per acre. The wife of Mr. Gardner is a daughter of Hon. James Hopkins, of Lancaster county, and several years ago attended the Ladies' Cottage seminary here. Her intimate relation with the family of Mr. Charles Rutter, created in Mrs. Gardner a desire to reside in Pottstown permanently, and it was this object that induced her husband to visit the place for the purpose stated.

Jacob Stauffer's Funeral.

The funeral of Jacob Stauffer took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock and was attended by a very large concourse of relatives, friends and citizens generally, among whom were many of the oldest and most prominent of our people.

The friends assembled at the late residence of deceased, No. 235 East Orange said Mr. Gardner, that he attended to street, where a short formal service was held, after which the body was taken to the Presbyterian church and the casket containing it was placed at the head of the centre aisle. The church was crowded. The religious service was conducted by Rev. J. Y. Mitchell, the pastor, assisted by Rev. J. J. Starh, Rev. J. H. Dubbs, D.D., and Rev. E. V. Gerhart, D D. After the reading of a portion of the scripture by Rev. Dr. Gerhart, the hymn "I would not live alway" was sung by the congregation. Rev. Mitchell followed with a funeral oration in which he paid a high tribute to the Christian character of Mr. Stanffer. The hymn "Shall We Meet Beyond'the River," was sung by the cho'r. The hymns above named were favorites of the decased, and were sung the last time that he attended church prior to his last sickness.

At the end of the service the casket containing the remains was opened, and all present had an opportunity of viewing the body. The features looked calm and nat-The body was clothed in a black shroud, and was literally covered with choice flowers, a fitting tribute to the great botanist, a great portion of whose life was spent among the flowers, the study of which was one of his chief delights.

The funeral procession then formed and moved to Lancaster cemetery where the remains were interred.

We see it announced in the Republican papers of Lancaster that our old friend and classmate, Wm. D. Weaver, is a candidate for district attorney. We have known Mr. Weaver in and out of school for many years and we have always found him honest and upright, and it is our opinion that if the "Bull Ringers" and Hog Ringers" of that delectable political clime want a good, square fellow of sound horse sense, plenty of brains and some conscience to boot, they will select Weaver. His Republicanism is of the rankest kind but he has also redeeming qualities about him, and as there
